

Professor John Corbett

Consultant Neurologist and Sleep Physician (Retired)
MB, BS (Hons), FRCP (UK), FRACP, MA (Oxford), DPhil
(Oxford), MACLM

Patron Sleep Disorders Australia

Dr John Corbett graduated dux of his year at the University of Queensland Medical School before travelling to Oxford University as the Queensland Rhodes Scholar of 1965. He then spent nine years in study and research in Neurology at Oxford, much of this as an Oxford Don, before becoming a Visiting Professor at Harvard University. He then returned to Australia in order to practice neurology.

In 1994, Dr Corbett studied sleep disorders as a Visiting Scientist at John Hopkins University, and has practiced ever since in Queensland in Neurology and Sleep Medicine. He was one of only three Neurologists in Australia who is also a Credentialed Sleep Physician. In 2001 he was awarded a Centenary Medal for 'Distinguished Service to Medicine'. Professor Corbett is now retired from practicing medicine.

